Dishonesty in Sportsmanship

Sportsmanship reflects qualities like fairness, self-discipline, persistence and daresness. These elements can lead to dispute when the desire to win is more rather than to play with honesty and equity. In modern elite sports, competition and winning are often prioritized over sportsmanship also some athletes still value it. The most common violation of sportsmanship is cheating. In a game, a sore loser blames others for his loss while a bad winner

Shows his victory in a wrong way and disrespects the opposing team. Leslie Howe explains that intentionally not performing well shows disrespect and sabotage the opponents confidence.
