Title: The Deceptive Skills of Politicians

29/80

06/20

Politicians have some rare and unparalleled talents of deceiving others. They skillfully use language to deceive others by making promises and evading questions. They trick others by performing political stunts such as taking pictures with babies and stray dogs to attain attention of their audience. They do all of these even turning scandals into political victimization case for self-preservation. Ultimately, it shows that modern leadership is less about serving the masses and more about perfecting the performance.

Some of the aspirants of the competitive exams are those who believe that merely gazing the book cover or putting notes under the pillow at night will make them toppers. They are the ones who even try to find references in their prayers after two-days of preparation. Reality is that no one has any such "magical stick" or "short-cut" key to success. Exceptional unusual results demand unusual hard-work. So next time,
