

Brain Drain and Family Strains: The Impact of Immigration on Pakistani families.

Outline:

① Introduction.

Thesis statement:

"While a large number of Pakistanis are immigrating to foreign countries due to economic and educational motivations, it has led to Brain drain but has also impacted social life of Pakistani families."

Too much unnecessary detail. No proper overview of the essay.

No addressal of the actual topic.

② The pushing forces behind motivation:

a. Economic motivations

(i) higher pays in foreign countries.

(ii) lesser job opportunities in Pakistan. (ones available are taken over through intercession leaving talented people with no option to migrate);

(iii) American Dream still relevant to this day but now altered in the form - relevant to other countries as well.

Example not an argument. Overlaps with the first point.

b. Educational Motivation

~~(i) Not enough resources available for higher education~~

~~(ii) Scholarships available seem to be a good opportunity for lower or even middle class families~~

~~(3) While the immigration may prove to bring~~

~~momentary economic relief, it seems to have far reaching impacts on life~~

~~of Pakistani families both outside and within Pakistan.~~

~~a - Emotional costs of separation:~~

~~(i) diasporic feelings in people living abroad and longing to reconnect with their families.~~

~~(ii) lack of enough connection with the parent away in case of children may result in extreme personalities ie either become rebellious or grow up too fast and become too mature for their age~~

~~b - Changing gender roles and family dynamics.~~

~~(1) Burden on mothers have increased in cases where only father has immigrated.~~

Not a suitable heading.

It should either be a self explanatory phrase or a short sentence.

The discussion is only for families in Pakistan

Sentence structure

No relation to family strain

Sentence structure

(ii) Usually elder ~~child~~ son has to take over the responsibilities of father. ~~Burdening them from a very young age~~ results in psychological/behavioral issues.

Not related to strain in family

(4) Despite its ^{negative} harmful impacts, the benefits of immigration are too alluring for distressed families to not give in to.

(i) If Pakistan's government wants to stop brain drain before the time comes when there will be no talented resources left, it must take following steps:

- a- provide incentives and opportunities for talented
- b- social support systems for separated families.
- c- Ensure merit based recruitments in governmental posts.

(6) Conclusion.

Outline is incoherent and unstructured.
