

Question 1: Preci

Title : The True Essence of Sportsmanship 3

Preci:

:E. rails up

Sportsmanship ~~provides~~ ability for individuals to present their differences in stable way. It is associated with characteristics like fairness, self-control, bravery and persistence. The four aspects of sportsmanship i.e., good form, will to win, equity and fairness, must be found in balance. The desire for one aspect can result clash within sportsmanship. It will defeat the purpose as they are ignoring main aspects resulting self-centered sportsman which eventually dismiss the idea of sportsmanship. Also, rules take backseat and the elite sportsman is seen as standard of sportsmanship. Cheating is the most common offence of bad sportsmanship. A competitor who does not know how to accept the defeat is termed as "sore loser" while bad winner is the one who lowers the self-esteem of their opponent by giving gestures. If sportsman do not show respect, he is considered bad sportsman. Further, if sportsman put less effort for weaker opponent, it is considered as demoralizing effect.

5

Question 3:

most opposite.

- 1) (d) enliven X
- 2) (b) energize ✓
- 3) (a) improve X
- 4) (b) dilute ✓
- 5) (a) encouraging X
- 6) (d) weaken ✓
- 7) (b) separate ✓
- 8) (b) colossal X
- 9) (c) heartening X
- 10) (d) suspicious X

Question 2: Comprehension.

Q1:

In order to achieve increased viewership, media prioritize sensationalism and click-worthy content over accuracy which lead to spread of misinformation, rumors, conspiracy theories and unverified claims. It results in difficulty for public to distinguish between credible information and falsehood.

Q2:

Media oversimplifies complex matters as a result multi-faceted issues may be reduced to polarized viewpoints. This oversimplification of issues lead to lack of understanding of complex issues and contribute to more confusion.

Q3:

The constant exposure to information in the 24/7 news cycle contributes to information overload, making it difficult for individuals to process. This can lead to cognitive fatigue, reducing people's ability: to realistic thinking

Q4:

2 Conflicting messages from media influence social expectation by advertisements, entertainment and news content. The portrayal of unrealistic standards, conflicting role models and divergent cultural messages results in conflicting cultural messages.