Politicians are full aware of manipulated tactics. They present themselves as examples of honesty and dignity but their actions reveals their their original face. To avoid direct and complex questions answers they use complex sentence structure language and portrays politics as a performance rather than governance. They make promises, before elections but just after the election results, they turned into cunning practices. They never fail to get people support through their crocodile tears or even through their entertaining skills. But for them, the only thing that matters is the pursuit pursuit

QUESTION # 3

Passage

Question # 1:

The use of renewable energy sources is oversimplified over the use of fossil fuels, due to the notion of environmental impacts of fossil fuels. However, this is not always true that renewable energy production does not effects the environment. The production of renewable energy products took the usage of fossil fuels and other elements for their working.

Question #2

Electric vehicles (EVs) are not as much friendly to environment as they are presented. They use batteries for running instead of fossil fuels, but the production of their batteries took heavy earthly metals like cobalt, lithium and nickel. Similarly after being operative, they need to be charged through electricity, which again primarily used fossil fuels and other substances. Hence EVs are not environmental friendly but they are just cost effective than normal vehicles.

Question #3

The disposal of process is the biggest challenge to the renewable energy system after their life ends. Their life span is usually between 20 to 30 years and needs to be installed again. However the issue arises with the dead products. There is no specific way to recycle them. Every time new earthly material needs to be mined for their production. And the disposal of previous and dead energy system causes the environment more harm.

Question # 4

According to the passage, the renewable energy is not entirely pollution free during its operational phase. For instance, Electric Vehicles (EV's) are considered as substitute for the fossil vehicles but their batteries need to be charged through the conventional current which is produced by burning fossil fuels.

Question # 5

According to the Article, a balanced perspective is required for the adaptation of renewable energy sources. Although they are energy efficient, cost effective and seems to not harm the environment but are affecting the environment in one or another way. Hence a balanced approach is required instead of relying on them blindly.
