The Essay

Both Einstein and Newton had to leave their countries for one reason or another. Einstein being Jewish, could not live in Germany during his time. And Newton had to leave England due to the bubonic plague. Your examples do not make sense, because brain drain doesn't diminish individual potential. It diminishes the state's potential.

What if the next Einstein as Newton is forced to leave their country due to lack of opportunities? Such question are harder for statemen to answer. Brain drain is the biggest threat not only to the developing countries but also to the developed ones. With the recent advancements in the field of science and technology, the process of immigration is also increased. Every single individual who has some skill wants to live his/her life according to his expectations, which eventually resulted in the form of brain drain. These are so many reasons which are forcing the young and educated people to leave their country in search of better opportunities. These includes: poor social services, no law and order discipline, low income, poor health services and unemployments. However, by taking some effective measures, this curse can be mitigated.

In simple words, brain drain is the process and movement of young as well as population to the other foreign countries in search of better lifestyle and facilities. It is caused by number of factors, which forces people to leave their homeland and loved ones in search of better opportunities. Another major reason behind brain drain is to uplift the social and economic status of the people. According to UN World Population, nearly 1.3 million Pakistani people left their homes in 2023. Similarly, brain drain not only causes a loss to the country but also affects the social fabric of the family. It puts the family under strain which means that the emigrant left his responsibilities on the shoulders of his family members to look after the domestic affairs. Hence the family has to rely on themselves in domestic sphere.

insufficient paramedical staff and the availability of doctors. According to HDR report 2024, Pakistan stands at 124th number globally. Similarly, the health department got only 27 billion rupees from budget FY-2024.

This clearly reflects that the availability of & quality health service to the people is difficult and urges people to move abroad. Similarly, the infrastructures of public hospitals are not up to the mark and does not have the quality equipments that are crucial to save the people. In this way, all these factors, collectively contributes to the brain drain of the local population.

of brain drain is the unemployment. Unemployment leads youth directly to the improper activities and even to the depression. In Pakistan, unemployment is the biggest threat to the country then comes the terrorism.

opportunity but on the other side he puts a burden of responsibilities on the shoulders of his family. This makes a strain on the family and many a ropes are associated with the person who has gone abroad.

Sending one person to some foreign nation/country does not mean that the hurdles have been uplifted but rather it has increased the difficulties for the immigrant's family.

The emigrant has put a burden of the family on their shoulders. Now the family has to seen their social and other domestic affairs themselves.

the situation solely. This makes the condition more miserable for the family and the immigrants.

Another strain on family is the separation. Family members are separated due to the brain drain and live their lives without seeing one another oftenly. A recent research by Brown University concluded that 30% of the ~~people~~ dies without the presence of their children. Parents and their children usually met after years and years. This further puts a gap between their bondings. Parents keep looking for their children to return home but also hopes for their better tomorrow. This leads to the long term separation between the family members.

Humans are emotional creatures of God. They live together and develop emotions. But when their loved ones depart from them, it leaves an emotional stress onto them. Families often face emotional disorders and their love, care and affection puts them into a deep teckling state. This results in the form of stress, depression and anxiety. Hence, with the passage of time, this emotional stress keeps on increasing and makes it more difficult for the family to leave live without the departed person.

last but not the least, social dynamics of the family also changes as a result of family strain. The tasks and actions which men were used to perform, now has to be performed through the females of the family. This makes it more difficult for the family members to look the both both internal and external spheres. Resultantly, it puts more pressure and responsibility on the family.

How is that negative??

~~Brain drain~~ Brain drain and family strain has badly affected the social fabric of Pakistan. Similarly the immigration has also impacted the family structures in Pakistan. Dependency on foreign remittance, cultural migration and delayed marriages are in fact the results of immigration.

Firstly, Remittance plays an important role in the uplifting of family's social and economic condition. But on the other hand it makes family more dependant on remittance to look the domestic affairs. If not provided timely, it can cause serious problems and even rises tension among family members. Likewise, the sender has to work hard to live up his life and to send remittance to the family. So, this condition makes the situation versatile for on both ends to meet the economic challenges.

Secondly, by spending

Some time in another country, one automatically adopts their culture. He makes a separate social standing as compared to the family. This results in the adoption of other his culture by the family through himself. In the beginning it may not feel different, but some time one starts hating his previous and native culture. Resultingly, immigration allows them to adopt another another culture and to transform himself into a new personality.

Lastly, one of the major impact that immigration has put is the delay in marriage. Young male and female, who go abroad for settlement purposes usually delays the decision to get married. According to the

WHO report 2023, 34% people in Pakistan are above 30 years of age who are unmarried and are looking for stability. This shows that how much the immigration process has impacted the Pakistanis in late marriages. Likewise there are many Pakistanis who have married abroad and prefer to marry their children there instead of Pakistan.

Although, brain drain has affected the social cycle of Pakistan and also has impacted the family strain, but it can be mitigated with the adaptation of right policies and reforms.

The important step that can help people to not leave their homeland is the application of effective governance and the rule of law. Nobody should be considered above the law and the decision should be made on the basis of merit. This will not only help to decrease the rate of brain drain but will also raise a layer of safety and liberty among the people.

Another important step is to raising the education system from the ashes. All the progress in the modern world is a result of their education system. For this purpose, latest curriculum along with vocational training is crucial to uplift the social and economic condition of the nation. Training of teaching staff and infrastructural development is also needed. Most importantly government should increase the budget spending on the educational sectors as it is the most needed one. Through this, Pakistan will not only become an educated nation but will also attract the foreign students.

The biggest need of the hour is to eradicate unemployment.
More than 90% people leave Pakistan just for this reason. Government should come up with reforms and different programs to give employment to the deserving people. Moreover, institutes should promote small business and banks should provide interest free loans to the people to start their businesses. This will definitely help the people to promote employment and no one will sleep empty stomach.

Lastly, Government of Pakistan should invest more in the public sectors. Free medical services, medicines, old age pensions, stipend to unemployed, building software parks and running transport services with low fares is the need of the people. The economy of Pakistan is not so strong to afford these initiatives but by collaborating with foreign investors, Pakistan can achieve this goal.

In a nutshell, Pakistan is passing through a critical time and is facing many challenges which are forcing the people to leave their beloved and native homeland. However by adopting the effective measures and by ~~the~~ promoting the sustainable growth of the nation, Pakistan can easily overcome this problem. However there are a number of problems but they can be solved even by starting from zero. As Lao Tzu says that "The journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step."
