Q.No. 2

Politicians : Not Leaders but Actors ✓

08/20

Overall idea is ok

Title needs improvement.

Grammar is ok.

Politicians use complex and confusing words in answer of simple questions to gain power. If one asks them about their motives they use such techniques of circumlocution that that the inquisitor may forget his own question. They make unrealistic promises which only last till the ballots are counted. Everyone enjoys their acting skills in the public including shedding tears. Their well timed photos are heavier than both the pen and the sword. Moreover, they are highly talented and can change their opinion and ideology in minutes. They are like Olympian to escape any scandal and they are actors not leaders.

Ultimately, leadership in politics is more about perfecting the art of performance than genuinely serving the people.
