Avoid Irrelevant Ideas and Details
Avoid Repetition of ideas

COMPREHENSION:

ANSWER(1):

10/20

The environmental impact of renewable energy are complex and not far from the traditional fossil fuels. The production of renewable energy is a resource consuming process that effects the environment. Solar panels require rare Earth metals like cadmium and tellurium, the extraction of such elements causes environmental degradation. Similarly, wind turbines also demand steel, concrete and rare Earth metals. The extraction can cause green house gas emission and the exploitation of finite resources. In addition, both solar and wind energy cause disruption in ecosystem when generated.

General guidelines for Comprehension

- Read the passage carefully to understand the main idea, tone, and context.
- Identify key information like themes, arguments, dates, and names.
- Analyze the questions to know exactly what's being asked.
- Answer briefly and directly, staying focused on the question.
- Support answers with evidence from the passage (quotes or paraphrasing).
- Avoid adding personal opinions; rely on the text's content.
- Organize your responses logically, with clear points.
- Be concise and stay within the word limit.
- Don't over-interpret - stay true to what the passage conveys.
- Review answers for clarity, grammar, and accuracy if time permits.

ANSWER(2):

EVs are friendly but the reality is far from this. The manufacturing of the lithium ion batteries needs extensive mining of rare Earth metals, this in return leaves the environment polluted. As the mining cause environment destruction, soil contamination and high water usage. The charging and disposal of batteries poses more challenges because if the battery is charged through fossil fuels energy, the whole point of EV cars becomes negative in addition to this if the battery is not properly disposed or recycled it becomes toxic waste. While EVs have potential but overallly their life cycle emission suggest they are not a complete solution.

ANSWER (3):

There are many challenges associated with the disposal of renewable energy after their life span. Solar panels and wind turbines, after 20 to 30 years reach the end of their utility. Recycling of these components is not an easy task and disposal often results in the accumulation of toxic waste. Without a proper infrastructure to dispose or recycle these components, will cause the degradation of environment.

ANSWER (4):

The use of renewable energy system are not immune to pollution during their operational phase. Solar panels and wind turbines makes the use of fossil fuel energy and reliance on battery storage compulsory. Batteries are made up of elements that cause the degradation of environment. The land used for solar farms and wind parks displaces the local wildlife community, in addition forests are often cleared to accommodate these installations. While renewable energy reduced the reliance on fossil fuels but it does come with some associated costs.

ANSWERS (5):

The article suggests that renewable energy is not a universal cure for saving the planet. There are some associated costs affiliated with the use of renewable energy. There must be a balanced perspective between renewable and non-renewable energy. The use of renewable energy is not a silver bullet for saving the planet but a complex, imperfect solution that requires a careful management. ~~only~~ by acknowledging the limitations of renewable energy can we harness its potentials truly.

Some students of the competitive public examination think that by only looking at the book and keeping their notes under the pillow, will make them top the exam. These people, after the preparation of 2-3 days seek divine intervention in their prayers to favoure them. The reality is that to become successful there is no magical wand or any sort of shortcut. If one needs extra ordinary result, he needs to work extra ordinary hard. So, when the next time you are holding a cup of tea and thinking whether if you should study or not, always remember that success comes not from joking around but hard work.

it comes from rolling up your sleeves and putting in the hard yards!
