Question # 02

Precis : A Hollow Progress

Civilizations have always aspired to grow. However, the tendency to regression persists. The modern time offers advancement in every aspect but not for the conscience of a man. The sparkling developments of this time rarely see the drawbacks 'desires for more' have. This have resulted in the degradation of human values, character, and dignity and money replaced the morality. From the sanctity of homes to the modicum of learning, everything is at stake due to materialistic ambitions. From business to public dealings to individual affairs, profits and money dominate everything. The drawbacks of such system include lack of trust, undermined institutions, and the sad state of wealth-hungry intellectuals. Similarly, the highest values of human character are replaced with uncontrollable desires for money. This wealthcentric times made man unable to introspect. Due to this, man became materialistic and lack character. The irony is that despite comfort and achievements, satisfaction is lacking. The 'desire for more' should be countered with moral principles otherwise the progress will continue to be hollow.

Questions #03

Q1: Answer

Arab leaders changed their attitude towards Pakistan due to the country's impressive show of cyber-warfare. Pakistan, for the first time, showed its prowess in the technology during war-times, and successfully dominated the digital arena of rival country. As a result, the Arab leaders changed their stance towards Pakistan.

Q2: Answer

Pakistan's conventional as well as digital warfare techniques were unexpected for New Delhi. Pakistan with its advanced air-defence system shot down five Indian Rafal jets and the advance technological tactics caused panic in India. Due to these this unexpected response which paralyzed the Indian military as well as communication systems, the country experienced deep psychological shocks.

Q3: Answer

If Pakistan had not launched digital warfare after the missile retaliation, it might have not proved this much effective. It was due to the integration of both these means that Pakistan achieved splendid victory over its rival. Each of the two proved to be the best combination as both would be ineffective if implemented in isolation.

Q4: Answer

Traditional military and digital warfare both played a decisive role in the Indo-Pak conflict. By comparing both strategies, one can find out that both carry equal significance:

Pakistan's advanced air-defence system shot down 5 Rafales while its cyber units disabled Indian military communication system.

Pakistan's long-range missiles struck the Indian military installation at India. At the same time, the Pakistani cyber-security system was able to hijack the satellite networks.

It clearly shows that both traditional military and cyber-warfare proved equally decisive and effective.

Ques 5 / Answer

If the events of the 10 May, 2025 were to be viewed as a turning point, it points out to a very strategic shift in power perceptions. Power, as before, no more lies in the strength of army and military men but how they utilize that strength. "Rafales are very potent aircrafts if conducted well," remarks a Pakistani air force commander. It demonstrates that it is not only about the equipments and artillery but also about human talent. Similarly, the definition of power also exceeded after that conflict. Power now also lies in the hands of those who dominate the digital world. It is not more limited to conventional military means.
