

outline

A-Introduction

- 1- Hook
- 2- Importance of dreams for achievement
- 3- Thesis statement

B- How Dreams Lead to Achievement

- 1- Dreaming of independence can give birth to free nation
 - Example: Independence of Pakistan
- 2- Dreaming of breaking tyranny can ignite revolutions
 - Example: French Revolution
- 3- Dreaming of great leadership can shape the course of history
 - Example: Nelson Mandela
- 4- Dreaming of scientific discovery can redefine human progress
 - Example: Madam Curie
- 5- Dreaming of economic revival can transform national destiny
 - Example: Great Depression of US
- 6- Dreaming of innovation can revolutionize industries
 - Example: Innovation led by Elon Musk
- 7- Women's dreaming of leadership can weaken patriarchal norms
 - Example: Benazir Bhutto as first women prime minister of Pakistan
- 8- Dreaming of poetic expression can immortalize emotions and thoughts
 - Example: Mirza Ghalib and Allama Iqbal
- 9- Dreaming of rising from destruction can rebuild nations
 - Example: Japan's rising from ashes
- 10- Dreaming of gender equality can secure women's rights
 - Example: wave's of feminism
- 11- Dreaming in sports world can give birth to sport legends
 - Example: Maxwell, Shahid Afridi and Ronaldo
- 12- Dreaming of glory in battle can forge history of victory
 - Example: Julius Caesar
- 13- Dreaming of a patriot can provide nuclear strength to a nation
 - Example: Dr. Abdul Qadeer Khan

14- Dreaming of girl's education can break the old ropes

- Dream of Aga Khan III changed the fate of Hunza valley

C- Prerequisites to achieve dreams

- Hardwork
- Dedication
- Resilience
- Consistency
- Hope

D- Conclusion

Once, the famous Napoleon Hill stated that whatever the mind can conceive and believe, it can achieve. It reveals that the ^{actual} dreamers always achieve what they dream of despite all the adversities and difficulties they face alongside their journey. Dream is the fundamental prerequisite to achieve anything great. Certainly, there is nothing in the world that can be achieved without dreaming it. All the human beings are born equal, however, some goes on to become leaders, Scientists, philosophers, reformers or great thinkers, while huge population succumb to live an ordinary life. The difference between these two categories is not about their abilities and mental capacities, but the difference lies in their dreams and the way they persue their dreams to achieve it. Some of them dream and stay resilient. ~~with their dreams~~. Their strong believe and consistency make them able to achieve their goals. Furthermore, history is full with great people who actually first, had a dream of what they wanted to achieve. Despite all the hurdles on their way, they made their dreams come true. As Eleanor Roosevelt said "The future belongs to those who believe in the beauty of their dreams, which depicts the strength of dream. Dreaming of independence gives birth to free nation. Dreaming of breaking tyranny can ignite revolution. Dreaming of great leadership can shape the course of history. Dreaming of scientific discovery can redefine human progress. Dreaming of economic revival can transform national destiny. Dreaming of innovation can revolutionize the industry. Dreaming of women's leadership can weaken the patriarchal norms. Dreaming of poetic expressions can immortalize emotions and thoughts. Such are the examples of how dreams can pave the way to achievement.

Firstly, dreaming of independence can give birth to free nation. Independence of Pakistan 1947, is the concrete manifestation of how a nation that dreamed of independence for decades, faced huge adversities and hurdles, finally got the prize of their hardships and struggle in the shape of independence in 1947. Although, achieving a dream is not a short term process, long-term resilience and sticking to the aims can lead a nation towards ~~their~~ its final destination. Therefore, it can be stated that if a nation can dream of independence, it can achieve it.

Moreover, dreaming of breaking tyranny can ignite revolution. Tyrannies had been ruling in Europe since long. People were unaware of the right of freedom. However, when they came to know about the right of freedom and many fundamental rights which they had not been giving under the rule of tyrannies and monarchies. Seeing the outer world, they started aspiring for freedom. French Revolution, the great example of how whole population fought against the cruel rule and achieved freedom through revolution. Hence, it can be said that dreaming of freedom can lead to the great revolutions.

Furthermore, dreaming of great leadership can shape the course of history. personalities from political arena such as Nelson Mandela and Quaid-e-Azam are the true sign of inspiration, how the great leaders of the world once aspired for the leadership and changed the history through the qualities of their leadership. Despite being imprisoned for forty years, Nelson Mandela, never lost hope and got stuck to his dream and able to overcome all the hardships and hurdles, finally achieved his dream. These leaders inspired whole of the nations ~~the~~ and teach the lesson that achievers were always once a dreamers.

Additionally, dreaming of scientific discovery can redefine human progress. Madam Curie, is one of the fair example of how aspiration for scientific discovery embark her on a path to achievement. Despite all the struggles and hardships of life, Madam Curie had a strong believe in her dreams and she made her aspirations come true. Such an examples of resilience and self believe is the ~~a~~ inspiration for future dreamers. Since, it can be stated that if one can dream big, he can achieve big.

Along with that, dreaming of economic revival can transform national destiny. The nations which today are known as developed nations and superpower, All of these nations had a long journey of adversities. Such example is the Great depression of US 1930, which demonstrates the power of dreaming big and how a dreaming nation can come out of the great depressions of their economy and become the most prosperous nation. Therefore, it can be stated that dreaming economic prosperity can transform national destiny.

Furthermore, dreaming of innovation can revolutionize industries. Innovations led by Elon Musk in the field of information Technology took whole of the world toward the Information Technology revolution. Now, the IT is replacing every sector in the world. It depicts how the dreams can bring great revolutions all over the world. Hence, the one, who can dream it, certainly can achieve it.

Moreover, women's dreaming of the leadership can weaken the patriarchal norms. Despite living in a patriarchal society, leading a nation being a woman is the great example of how dreams ensure the achievements. Benazir Bhutto, an inspiring example for the world. Being women in a patriarchal society, she appeared to become the first prime minister of Pakistan as a woman. Thus, dreams are always achievable through resilience and dedication.

Furthermore, dreaming of poetic expression can immortalize emotions and thought. Mirza Ghalib, arguably, the greatest Urdu poet, despite harsh realities of his life, losing his children, facing the harsh time of Subcontinent, he remained strong and provided the whole nation of the Sub-continent with the great immortal Urdu poetry. Moreover, Allama Iqbal, being the poet of East, still inspire the youth through his poetic verses. Hence, it can be said that big dreamers always achieve their dreams.

In addition to that, dreaming of rising from destructions can rebuild the nation. Japan, is the greatest example. In world war II. America bombed the two big cities of Japan and turn those cities into ashes. Japan, as a nation, rise up from those ashes and became one of the most developed and prosperous nations. Hence, if a nation can dream of prosperity, it can even rise up from the ashes.

Date: _____

Also, dreaming of gender equality can secure women's rights. Before the world war I, women had no rights, however, during world war, women were given the position in industries to help the war. After which they dreamed of having all the rights. Hence waves of feminism started to spark in the whole world and now women has many rights. Therefore, if one can dream, he can achieve.

Moreover, dreaming in the field of sports can give birth to legends. Such examples are Maxwell, Shahid Afridi and Christiano Ronaldo. They stay consistent and resilient with their dreams and made histories in their respective fields. This depicts that dreamers are the achievers.

Furthermore, dreaming of glory in the battle field can forge the history of victories. These dreams wrote the names of legends in the history such as Julius Caesar, who dreamed to win the battle field and stay strong the the field. Through which he was capable of winning the battle field despite in the difficult and harsh situation during the war. This depicts that resilience can make the dreams come true.

Although, if one can dream it, can achieve it. However, there are certain prerequisites for dreams to be come true. These are the hardwork, dedication, Resilience, consistency and hope. If one fulfills these prerequisites to achieve his dreams, he certainly can achieve dreams, as the famous Walt Disney quoted that All our dreams can come true, if we have the courage to pursue them.

To conclude, all the people who dreamed, they achieved their dreams with resilience, as they never gave up on the harsh circumstances. Dreaming of rising up from destructions rebuild the nation, dreaming of gender equality secured women's right, dreaming in sports world gave birth to legends, dreaming of glory in the battle field forged history of Victories, dreaming of a patriot provided the nations with nuclear strength. All of these examples depicts that if you can dream it, you can achieve it because the future belongs to those who believe in the beauty of their dreams.