Q Write a precis of the following passage and also suggest a suitable title.

Title: Money Is Not the Chief Aim

A truly educated, intelligent or brave man does not make money the chief aim of life, just as food, though necessary, is not life's central aim. People enjoy to earn money, but they value purpose more. A good soldier aims to win battles not just earn pay. A sincere clergyman performs religious duties for service, not income. Likewise good doctors prioritize healing patients over collecting fees. They would rather save a life without payment than cause harm for money. In all noble professions, duty comes first, and earnings, though important are always secondary to the real purpose of work.
