A thing of beauty is
a joy forever.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever" is a famous line from John Keats' Poem. It explains the importance of beauty in human life. Beauty is present in various forms in man's life and it gives pleasure in different ways. It can heal all the pain of man and its effect is not ~~temporaxy~~ temporary because it lasts forever. The feelings, ^{hope} and pleasure a person gets from beauty and its essence always stay with his soul. Beauty is a reason to live happily even after so many dissapoin-
-ments. It reflects from both natural and man-made things. One can feel, recognize and value beauty in art also. It is a sign of peace in the world. It increases with passage of time and continues to make a person happy. It reflects in the sun, moon, stars, sky, flowers, mountains, lakes, glaciers, islands and even in art and poetry. A soul suffering from pain finds comfort in beauty of all things around. The running streams, waving winds and flowers, sound of chirping birds in the morning, the smell of rain and the colour of clouds have peaceful impact on human mind and soul. He forgets all his sorrows and pain when his soul and heart are exposed with beauty of things around him. Natural beauty is not only in the form of physical appearance but it also exists in good morals, friendly relations, lovely feelings and even in a smile full of love. So this beauty is present in so many forms in this world that a person has got this always to overcome his griefs. It helps man to living happily, continuing struggling, not giving up and imparting positivity. The beauty present in nature, human's behaviors, art and crafts is a sign of prevailing joy and peace in the world that one must endorse.

This is what Karen Walrond said, "I will never apologize for embracing joy and beauty, even when the world is falling apart—because joy and beauty are my fuel for activism."
