Q: Paragraph of 250 words.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever"

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever", famously written by a poet John Keats, captures a powerful truth of life. This well-known line means that true beauty, whether we find it in nature, art, melody, or any kind act of another person, brings happiness to a level that never truly fades away. Real beauty has a lasting impression on our hearts and minds. It acts like a constant source of calm. Imagine the breathtaking views of a mountain, or a beautiful melody that takes us to a time when we first listened to it or a song that speaks to our soul, these are the things that we can return to again and again holding true beauty and joy for us. The best example of such beauty is our beautifully written book, 'Holy Quran', that holds true beauty for us and different perspectives and calm for us each time we read it. This kind of beauty reminds us that the most valuable things are not those we can touch or buy, but rather the experiences that enrich our inner soul and provides endless moments of delight. The power of true beauty lies in ~~the~~ its ability to offer us perpetual sense of wonder and contentment, proving its value beyond measure.
