Title: Work Comes First, Then Money

People with strong moral values never make money their mission of life. They may like getting money, but it is not the purpose of their life. A good soldier is happy when paid, but he lives to win battles. A clergyman's main goal is to spread guidance, not to earn money. Likewise good doctors serve to cure the sick, not just to earn. So, for truly dedicated people, work comes first and money comes naturally after it.
