

"Empowerment of women leads to development of a good family, good society, and ultimately a good nation" - Dr. A. J. Abul-Kalam. Women empowerment is made up of the word "women" and "Empowerment". Empowerment refers to the Authority and power to women. The founder of our Nation Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah used to say that "there are two great powers in the world one is the sword and other is the pen and there's a great deal of Rivalry and Competition Between the two But there's a third Power greater than both and that is our woman". Women Empowerment has generally three components. firstly, women's sense of self-worth. secondly, their rights to have a power of control their own lives, both within and outside the home. Lastly, their ability to influence the direction of social change to create a just social and economic order nationally, internationally and universally. Empowerment has multiple, inter-related and interdependent dimensions: economic, social, personal and political dimensions. Economic Empowerment means to Empower women Economically by giving her rights to properties. In social dimensions, it means women's social status should be equal to that of man by avoiding all discrimination based on injustice and inequality. politically, women should be Empowered by reserving their seats in National as well as Provincial Assemblies providing their independent right of one woman one vote. personally, they should be given equal liberty and freedom in their personal Affairs such as in case of Marriage, vocational pursuit etc. As a whole Women Empowerment aims at providing women with their social, economic, political and personal rights.
