Women Empowerment

America's president Obama and her wife Michael Obama were having a dinner in a fancy restaurant. Restaurant's owner happened to be a good friend of Michael Obama. She told Obama about him. Obama said, If today you had ~~did~~ not ^{married} marry me, you would be mere wife of a restaurant owner to which Michael replied in a very eloquent way that then he will ~~be~~ would have been President of America, not you.

This statement simply explains importance and a presence that a woman holds in society.

It is of her virtue that today addressers to ^{the} king empires are born and tutored by a woman.

Women Empowerment is the decision ability, the influence, the perspective of thinking a woman holds. Power to embrace such impressions shape a society that structure a well educated nation. This status of women can be raised through education, awareness, literacy, equal status in society, better livelihood and training. Women in today's world of 21st century are subordinate to none. They have their rights and they are not downtrodden. Women empowerment includes five main components according to a survey in Reuters. The first one discusses women's sense of self worth. They cannot simply speak for their rights if she herself underestimates her personal. The second component is their right to determine choices of the given one or if she wants then align to new one; # The third component is a woman's right to have access to the opportunities and resources. The fourth part is their own right on their lives and control them in their own ways whether in or outside home. Lastly their ability to influence the direction to social change to create a more just social and economic order.
