

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever"

Beauty, may it be in any form, a work of art, nature, or a person, can bring joy and happiness that lasts forever. If a person visits a beautiful landscape; the view would be imprinted on his mind; the nostalgia would be eternal, lasting for a lifetime. Similarly, art is also a way for experiencing joy. For example, ~~the~~ the Mona Lisa, a painting of the 15th century, has still captured the hearts of millions of art lovers despite being antique. It has forced people to travel thousands of miles just to witness the masterpiece with their own eyes. Lastly, a person's beauty can also be a source of never ending joy. Here, beauty of a person does not refer to his physical appearance; it transcends that idea. It refers to a person's moral character, manners and ethics. These are the true contributors of beauty in a person, physical beauty will fade with age, but inner beauty is an eternal flame that never goes out. To conclude, it is true that a thing of beauty is a joy forever, but we must determine what true beauty means for each individual. A self made definition is required; only then can we enjoy it till the very end.
