

English Comprehension Test - 2

38966 - Afra Fayyaz - 078

1. The text laments that art and aesthetic values have disappeared from ordinary life. People no longer recognize the spiritual importance of beauty in things they create or use. Instead of seeing beauty as essential, they view it as optional decoration, which results in lack of meaningful connection to the objects in daily life.
2. An artist is deeply aware of beauty and strives to express it in his work. On contrast, an ordinary man lacks this awareness and does not see beauty as essential to life ~~as~~ or creation.
3. We can make our lives beautiful by appreciating and practicing beauty in our daily work and surroundings. Recognizing aesthetic value as a spiritual need enriches both our inner life and environment.
4. The writer means that beauty is not something extra or optional. Like morality in actions, beauty is a fundamental part of life and should be naturally present in all human creations.
5. Yes, they do. The absence of beauty leads to dissatisfaction and spiritual loss. Just as truth guides thought and morality guides action, beauty enriches life. I agree with the writer's view.
