

A thing of beauty is a joy forever

The phrase that "A thing of beauty is a joy forever" emphasises the fact that beauty, in all its possible forms, has an ever lasting effect on the human heart and mind. It further highlights that real beauty is manifested in ways that leave a permanent impression not a temporary pleasure. The beauty, in fact, was created for a man to cherish in moments of sorrows. The striking examples of such kind of beauty involve multiple domains of life. For instance, beauty is revealed in nature as blooming flowers, lightening skies, rainfall, fallen leaves, rising sun, stars, moon, and so on. All these forms of natural beauty inspire our hearts and give us a reminder about the Creator of them. Beauty also goes beyond God's creation and is manifested in human arts. Living through the moments when one is able to appreciate and value the human art, one can find it in beautiful houses, paintings, pottery, sustainable cities, and other types of human-made stuff. Human vast gives a sense of pride in human intellect and the way he uses it. Moreover, beauty also lies in diversity of cultures and civilizations experienced by humans in different parts of the world. People of different color, features, creed, race, and religion again give a strong reminder about the diversity of beauty. It is also not just linked with physical ~~appearance~~, it is appearance rather covers acts of kindness, empathy, compassion, resilience, and social associations. In short, beauty is not limited, the limit is only in the eyes of beholder, who fails to value it.
