Passion For Work: The Ultimate Joy

professionalis priotize their goals

Money or food never consumes the minds of those who are woke. To all healthy minds, the joy of getting accomplished is way greater than the actual reward itself. A soldier having passion for winning battles would rather be kept off from battling than being deprived of the prize money. A clergyman would enjoy preaching without money. Good doctors center their lives around curing others and not just making money. They chose saving their patient's lives. The same is for all those prioritizing work over money. (88)
