Women Empowerment

Women empowerment is the process of ^{strengthening} strengthening women in every field of the world. Women empowerment is the basic need for enhancing economic progress, maintaining social discrimination ^{alleviating} and alleviating poverty. Empowering women is to be ensured by providing universal education and equal fundamental rights.

According to UN, women labour force ^{contribute} contributing 30% of GDP of the world this can be enhanced by activating women labour force, this leads to economic stability. Moreover, universal education is crucial step to be taken for empowering women in the race of world. Education is the equal fundamental right for both men and women. But the literacy rate of women is 40%, much lesser than of men is 71% in Pakistan. Education is the key of success of the nations who fosters the universal education for both men and women. More than, women empowerment enables the people to reduce poverty and lead towards the prosperous society in the world.

According to world Bank, 24.1% of the total population of world is living under the poverty line which is the great setback for a nation. Gender discrimination is the main hurdle in the way of women empowerment that can be reduced by promoting education, bridging the gender gap, spreading awareness about women rights and by reducing poverty in the world. By ensuring these factors, women become the essential part of the world in various fields such as medicines, sports, armed forces, polities and technology.
