A thing of beauty is a joy forever

The phrase "A thing of beauty is a joy forever" by an illustrious poet, John Keats emphasizes upon lasting impact of beauty on human souls. For efficient running of our lives, attraction acts as a fuel. This paragraph elucidates the positive influence of natural scenery, work of arts and literature and courteous human relations as tools of charm on human lives.

Human spirit feels ~~much~~ satisfied in the company of natural attractions. When a person visits tourist destinations like mountains, meadows, oceans or any other spot of attraction, he feels very jolly. These spots leave indelible traces in his mind. These memories are the source of allure and satisfaction for rest of life especially in times of despair.
