A "Purpose Beyond Pay"

Money is ~~not~~ the sole purpose of people's lives in noble professions. Money is important, but a doctor's desire ~~to~~ to cure the sick, a soldier's wish to serve his country, and a clergyman's aim to preach religion are stronger than the ~~desire~~ desire for payment. A rightly trained and competent man will always value his work over money. Though money is essential, it always comes second to professional duty and purpose in the lives of such dedicated individuals.
