Making Money: A Secondary Objective of Life

Well-educated and intelligent men never have making money as main objective of their lives. Because healthy minds enjoy making money but have aims ^{enjoy themselves} better than money. Good professionals including soldiers, doctors and clergymen are paid for their work, but their motive for work is mainly to perform well in their jobs not to earn money. Therefore, all trained and brave people put their work at first priority while money being important though at second priority.
