Translation:

History is full of those remarkable people who started their journey of life in most difficult circumstances, but still become among world's most famous and successful people. Success, respect and fame can not be achieved with less or zero effort rather wealth can, but for that there applies one condition that your (forether) forefather must have owned property, only then you can become wealthy. Wealth can buy luxuries of world, but it can not give you happiness. Sometimes it takes decades to earn respect but on the other hand only single moment is sufficient to cause scandal and humiliation.
