Q Translate the Passage into English, keeping in view the idiomatic / figurative expression.

History is full of such successful people who started their lives in extremely difficult conditions, but later they were counted among the world's successful and famous personalities. Success, respect and fame are never served to you on a plate; only wealth can be given to you on a plate. Even for that, there is one necessary condition:

Your ancestors must have property, only then you will get wealth. With wealth you can buy worldly comforts, but you cannot buy happiness. Sometimes, it takes decades for a person to earn respect while a single moment is enough to earn disgrace or become controversial. History is replete with such successful people who began their lives in extremely difficult situations, but with time, they became successful and famous personalities. Success, respect, and fame cannot come to you on a platter; only wealth can be bestowed upon you if you have ancestral property. For this, it is also imperative that your forefathers have left you with some property, only then you can gain wealth. With wealth, you can buy worldly possessions, but you cannot buy happiness. Sometimes, it takes many years for a person to earn respect or fame, and it takes only a moment to lose it by becoming involved in a dispute or by committing a shameful act.
