

History is replete with such successful people who began their lives in extremely difficult situations, but with time, they became successful and famous personalities. Success, respect, and fame cannot come to you on a platter: only wealth can be bestowed upon you if you have ancestral property. For this, it is also imperative that your forefathers have left you with some property, only then you can gain wealth. With wealth, you can buy worldly possessions, but you cannot buy happiness.

History is full of such successful people who started their life in hardship, but later they rose to be counted among the successful and well-known personalities. Success, respect and fame do not come easy; only wealth can be settled on a plate on the condition that you inherit it from your forefathers. With wealth you can buy material necessities but ~~cannot~~ buy happiness. Sometimes, it takes decades/years to earn respect; ^{but} and a moment to lose it or to become a controversial figure.
