

Translation

The history is replete with the accounts of such successful people, who began their life in adverse conditions but were successful. You are not served with the respect, success, and fame in a plate, only affluence could be served to you in a plate, it also has a proviso that your forefathers should be wealthy, only then you will be granted wealth. Wealth does not buy you everything, even people like Robs. Wealth may buy you material stuff, but not the happiness. Sometimes it takes decades for a person to earn respect, while a moment is enough to earn disgrace or become controversial.
