Q. No. 1

TRANSLATION

(A)

The moment economic powers of the world held the economic reins, progress became a distant dream for the developing economies. The international monetary institutions have developed such a mechanism which navigate developing countries into debt trap than towards progress. This new mechanism has replaced the traditional tools of control by interests, currency and market. ~~Cost~~ Striking a balance between the donor and recipient, in such a way as to keep the sovereignty of the latter intact, is the biggest challenge for international community.

B

Modern technology has revolutionized human life but with the cost of individual dignity and freedom. The personal data of every individual have been getting saved in this era of digital surveillance. This data is being exploited by the powerful into influencing the behaviors of people. If this problem is not discussed from moral and legal perspective, then the so called individual freedom would be nothing more than illusion.
