Question # 01

TRANSLATION

(A)

..... جب دنیا کی طاقتور
..... تابع نہ کرے۔

When the world's powerful economies bent the global financial system to serve their own interests, economic independence became nothing more than a dream for developing nations. Under the guise of loans, international financial institutions impose conditions that drive indebted countries not toward sustainable growth, but deeper into dependency. This has given rise to a new form of colonialism - one where the weapons of control are no longer guns, but currency, interest and markets. Today, the greatest challenge for nations is to strike a balance between progress and sovereignty, one that protects their national interests without surrendering to global pressure.

(B)

..... جدید ٹیکنالوجی
..... فریب ہو گئی۔

While modern technology has undoubtedly brought ease and comfort to human life, it has also raised profound questions about individual freedom and human dignity. In this age of digital surveillance, every moment of a citizen's life is being recorded in some database or another. Governments and corporations are transforming this vast reservoir of information into a new source of power, one capable of influencing even human behaviour. if this situation is not brought under effective legal and ethical control, the future human may still be called "free" but that freedom will be nothing more than an illusion.
