

Precis

Modern Educational Challenges

According to the author, the modern world's challenge is not a lack of knowledge but an excess of information without the wisdom to use it. The human mind not only stores data but also has the capability to understand facts. Earlier learning focused on depth, while modern education promotes memorization and cramming. People form opinions hastily, hindering genuine understanding. Technology worsens the problem by providing fragmented data. The author suggests that true education should focus not on increasing knowledge, but on deeper understanding and critical thinking. By learning fewer things thoroughly, one can develop the judgement to use knowledge properly.

Qno. 3.

Antonyms

- 1) Perspicacity
Naivety
- 2) Confabulation
Verification
- 3) Diligent
Amateur
- 4) Kiter
Out of syn
- 5) Rhubarb
Serenity
- 6) Indolent
Active
- 7) Coalesce
Separate
- 8) Rancor
Animosity
- 9) Acquiesce
Deny
- 10) Debilitate
Strengthen

Qno. 2:

Reading Comprehension

2)

Ans:

Ancient people view time as an organic, meaningful, with nature, rituals and human activities. They experienced sacred and ordinary time as different dimension of life. In contrast, modern people treat every moment as identical, causing a lack of natural rhythm and emotional connection with the passage of time.

4)

Ans:

This means that time is not only a flow but also how we live with time. When we are fully present, every moment become meaningful and we enjoyed. when we spent time qualitatively, we actually experience a genuine time.

1)

Ans.

The writer explains that modern humans live mechanical time. They work endlessly and did not enjoy quality time. They measure life through schedules and deadlines, reducing time to a series of counted units rather than a lived experience. This inefficiency detaches humans from the natural life and makes life difficult and devoid of <sup>true</sup> meaning.

3)

Ans.

Thick time refer to moments that lived deeply and experienced closely rather than just spent moments hastily. It is the time that induce creativity reflection and genuine connection. It is important because this time allow the people to live fully and productively.

5)

Ans :

Modern time management diminish the quality of human life. By giving importance to output rather reflection and emotional connection, it drains meaningful time. Efficiency race leave little time for peace and joy. True enjoyment is not just spending time but from inhabiting moments with consciousness which is the quality of thick time.