

Paper Precise

Q#3

Choose the opposite words

- 1 - C 2 - C 3 - D 4 - D 5 - B
6 - B 7 - C 8 - D 9 - A 10 - C

* ————— *

Q#2

Comprehension

Ans 1 - The writer identifies fundamental problem about modern human existence in relation to time. He says modern man measures time in hours and minutes and align his life according to it. The writer finds this chronological measurement of time problematic. He believes time is a psychological thing, and having tendency of contraction and expansion based on human engagement in his tasks. In short, the writer believes ^{that modern} a human existence measurement with respect to chronological time is problematic not true, and it should be measured in psychological standards.

Ans 2 - Ancient conception of time differ from the modern one. For them, time and events cannot be separated because they are bonded by the patterns of nature and human activity. However, man has lost realization that how sacred and ordinary time are different. He ~~measures~~ ~~to~~ these two with the same standards.

Ans3- The writer defines the word "thick time" in the passage and highlights its importance for human flourishing. The time when human efficiency is on its peak in the work he is doing, it is called thick time. The writer says this time is important because of quality work is being produced at this time. In short, thick time is the time when human efficiency is on its peak, and it is important because quality work is being produced at this moment.

Ans4- The statement, "We are not merely creatures who exist in time but beings who create time through the quality of our attention and engagement" highlights that humans are unlike other creatures who survive and do nothing in their lives. Instead man creates time by deep work and engagement which makes time more real.

Ans 5- Modern time management and productivity culture diminish the quality of human life. It is because human manage time on the basis of chronology. Time is not a chronological entity, it is a psychological entity in which a man is working without realization of its passing time. Therefore, quantification of time and productivity culture diminish the quality of human life.

Q#1

Precis