QUESTION NO 1

(A)

When the world powers made financial institutions a source of their nation's benefit, social sovereignty became an elusive dream for developing countries. When international financial institutions lend loans concealed in ~~conditions~~ a packet of conditions to be fulfilled, they lead countries' resources dependency rather than progression. This practice has introduced a new system where ~~power~~ the weapons of leadership is not a gun, but currency, interest and the market. Today, the biggest challenge for nations is to find a balance between progression and maintaining their sovereignty, that donot let institutions over power their national interest.

(B)

Though advanced technology has made human life easier, it has also raised questions about liberty and human dignity. In the era of digital surveillance, every moment of citizens is being saved in databases in one way or the other. Governments and organizations are hoarding enormous information and transforming it into a strength that will impact human beings negatively. If
