

Topic: When Others Build a Wall, Always Look For a Door.

Outline

1) Introduction

- Attention grabber.
- General Statements
- Thesis statements

In the modern world the opportunities in life have to be created by one's own self. People often turn their backs off when ^{a person} ~~they~~ needs them the most. At times life like this, one must always look for a light on the other side of the tunnel and follow it. It includes myriad benefits such as sense of purpose in life, contentment, increasing proactivity, economic benefits and a significant reduction in depression and suicide rates.

2) People turn their back at the time of need.

- a) Lack of parental support their children's passion creates a wall in their journey. (Throw children out when they want to pursue music)
- b) Absence of resources for higher education (obstacle for progress)
- c) ~~Ishtor~~ Isobhan by colleagues for progress (motivated by jealousy of talent)
- d) Society rejects radical ideas in the nation's development (Women development in a patriarchal society)
- e) Nepotism in job opportunities (Political contacts to gain high office paying government jobs)
- f) Political parties don't support a person's narrative (Imran Khan's struggle to align his ideology)

3) Always look for a door when others construct a wall.

- a) Start working by taking small internships or informal platforms. (Rise of ^{Ahif Aslam} ~~Teesham~~)
- b) Study hard to gain scholarships for education (SAT scores in America for scholarship)

c) In case of isolation, work independently

(Krish Kapoor to start singing abandoned by his band in Saiyaara)

d) Start up an informal media to gain economic stability (Irfan Junejo's progress on Youtube)

e) Create a new political party by taking small steps (Imran Khan's struggle to rise)

4) Benefits of seeking positivity in negative circumstances

a) Invokes spirit of hope

b) Satisfaction in life

c) Reduction in ~~anxiety~~ depression and suicide rates.

5) Conclusion

The Essay

When a person traverses through a dark alley, he faces many obstacles in his path. He has two options:
either let the dark engulf him and stop his journey or to look for objects

Day: _____

Date: _____

that he can use to lighten up his path and keep moving towards his destination. This anecdote gives ~~us~~ a very strong meaning that when ~~you~~ a person has a big wall in front of ~~you~~ ^{him}, he must not stop but he should look for a door that he can use to continue moving. In the modern world, the population is growing at a fast pace but the resources are limited to keep moving. Society's norms further increase the obstacles to grow. Parents don't support the unconventional passions of their children because of the customs and economic constraints. Society also creates problems while accepting ideas that are radical in nature. ~~but because~~ Sometimes jealousy at a workplace isolates a person so he cannot polish his brilliance. Further, the political monopoly hinders bright minds and great ideologies from rising. But these constraints must not act as barriers

Day: _____

Date: _____

to progression one must always take opportunities to move forward, no matter how small they are. This is because brick by brick a wall is constructed. One must always pursue their passion by taking up small platforms. To achieve higher education in economic constraints, one must study hard to gain scholarships. When the team abandons a talent out of jealousy, he must work independently to shine. To gain economic stability in a world of nepotism, one must shift to informal platforms to gain success. And when a political ideology is curbed, the person must walk slowly and create a new political party to gain support for his ideas. This will bring satisfaction in life along with the spirit of hope. Ultimately, it will result in a decline in depression and suicide rates. Hence, in the modern world, the opportunities in life have to be created by one's own self. People often turn their back off when a person needs them the most. At times like this, one must always look for a light on the other side of the tunnel and follow it. It includes myriad benefits such as a purposeful life, hope, contentment, economic benefits and a significant reduction in depression and suicide rates.

First of all in a conventional society, the parents discourage their children to pursue their passion by cutting off resources. The offsprings get discouraged and feel hopeless because they feel like they have hit rock bottom. In Pakistani families music is not an honorable profession. Hence, when children insist to join the music industry, parents kick them out of the house for acting rebellious. Hence, parents create obstacles in the way of their children to pursue their unconventional goals.

Sometimes, parents cannot support the children for their higher education because of economic constraints. Children feel like their opportunity to grow in the field of education has been hit by a wall. For them it feels like their journey has ended by a dead end. It creates despair which is a leading cause of depression. Hence, lack of economic resources ~~result~~ appear as an obstacle in the educational journey of a person.

Furthermore, when a person is ~~his~~ in his workplace, his talent is suppressed by the isolation politics of his colleagues. He thinks that he cannot prosper because he lacks support. For example Krish Kapoor in the movie Saayaara was isolated by his colleagues thinking that he would not strive without their support. Hence, talented people face hardships by the isolation politics of their colleagues.

In the light of above it is evident that in the course of a person's life he is faced by multiple obstacles such as lack of support, economic constraints, isolation politics due to jealousy, societal barriers, Nepotism and political suppression. But one must not let these dark shadows engulf him and lose hope. He must always look for an opportunity in the state of despair. In order to gain success he must start by taking small steps, study hard to gain scholarships and work independantly if no one supports a person. He must search for all means such as creating a new political party or use an informal platform to show progress and shine. These efforts will invoke a spirit of hope in a person, which will bring contentment in his life.

Day: _____

Date: _____

and prevent him from committing suicide and falling a prey to depression. Because of this specific reason the Holy Prophet said that hopelessness is a grave sin. The hope is always hidden behind the dark cloud. If one manages to pass through, he will land on the stars.

