

Name: Maryam Kinaat

Q.3

- 1- Perspicacity: C) Naivety ✓
- 2- Confabulation: A) Vexification ✓
- 3- Diligentante: D) Enthusiast X
- 4- Kilter: D) out-of-sync ✓ 5
- 5- Rhubarb: B) Cacophony X
- 6- Indolent: A) Lazy X
- 7- Coalesce: D) Separate X
- 8- Rancor: D) Amicability ✓
- 9- Acquiesce: B) Resist ✓
- 10- Debilitate: C) Strengthen X

Q. 2

Answer the Questions.

- ✓ 1- The writer highlights that modern humans live by the clock and measure life through hours and deadlines, but they do not truly understand what time means. People focus too much on managing time instead of ~~managing~~ experiencing it. As a result, life becomes rushed with little connection to the moments we live in.
- 3
- ✓ 2- The ancients saw time as connected with events and natural rhythms, with sacred and ordinary moments having their own distinct value. In contrast, modern time views time as equal and standardized units. This shift has brought precision but resulted in a loss of meaning, as modern comprehension does not fully capture the significance of time.
- 3
- 3- "Thick time" refers to moments that are fully lived and deeply experienced, rather than hurried or spent in pursuit of productivity. It encompasses creativity, reflection, or meaningful conversation. This nurtures emotional well-being, creativity, and inner peace.
- ✓

4

✓

It allows individuals to connect with life more meaningfully, which is essential for human growth and true fulfillment.

4-

The statement means that time is not just something that passes around us; it is shaped by how we live and perceive it. When we give genuine attention and emotional presence to our activities, we make time more meaningful and alive. In this sense, it is the quality of our moments, not their quantity that defines living.

4

✓

Time becomes a creation of our consciousness rather than just a measure on a clock.

5-

Modern time management often diminishes the quality of life. As the passage explains, when people treat time only as a resource to be used efficiently, they lose the joy and depth of living.

✓

Constant pressure to be productive leaves little room for creativity, rest or genuine human connection. True happiness comes from living "thick time", not from racing against the clock.

3

Title:

Knowledge Without Wisdom ✓ 4

Precis:

✓

Modern education values the collection of knowledge over the development of wisdom. The human mind, once used for reflection and deep thinking, has become overloaded with disconnected information. Students now chase quantity instead of quality, memorizing facts that quickly fade instead of gaining true sense. Society reflects this shallow learning where people form quick, uninformed opinions.

7

✓

Technology has added to the problem by filling minds with endless bits of information that bring little insight.

What people need today is not more knowledge, but the wisdom to use what they learn with understanding and purpose.

The End