Question No #03

Read the Passage carefully and answer the questions.

Q No# 1:-

Timothy Dexter, a trader which was very successful due to excessive confidence. His success produced hate for himself in the hearts of rivals. The rivals wanted to destroy his bussiness and suggest him to ship coal to England. They suggested because Newcastle has already endless supply of coal and there will be no value of Dexter's coal. But when he reached, the miner's strike in England proved fruitful for his. Instead of loss, this suggestion gave benefits him.

Q No # 2 :-

Timothy Dexter trusted the advice of his rival blindly and reached with the ship in England. His rivals wanted his defeat but against all luck plan something else for his. When his ship reached in England, there was a miner's strike in England that stopped local production which caused sudden shortage. This event proved beneficial for his. He sold the whole cargo with huge profit. In this way, his foolishness of trusting rivals turned into his success.

Q No # 3 :-

In Timothy Dexter's success, the author wants to introduce the relationship between luck and intelligence. In Dexter's story, he is not well-educated but having a lot of confidence, determination and good-will in his work. Luck is an involuntary force behind the defeat and success of any person. So, his good-will, intelligence and confidence turned his luck profitable in all works.

Q No # 4:-

Dexter's repeated success challenged the conventional ideas about business, wisdom and education. Dexter was not very educated, but he had a lot of confidence and knowledge about trade. He sent goods to those areas which need that things. His intelligence and consciousness related to every good and its benefits in different regions. This act transformed mockery into benefits and proved wrong the conventional ideas about business, wisdom and education.

Q No # 5 :-

According to author, it can be inferred about human perception "foolishness" and "genius" from the way as Dexter's rivals reacted to his achievements. The Dexter's rivals are jealous from his success and wanted to destroy his reputation. This was their foolishness to give ideas to Dexter instead to do something for their own success. Dexter was genius as he followed their ideas intelligently and earned success.
