Title: Renewable Energy — Yet Another Curse

Glamorised terminologies such as "Carbon neutrality" and "net zero" thrown by politicians and activists alike, moreover lay men's wishful thinking that renewable energy is salvation from traditionally practiced energy norms is nothing but a glorified facade. The irony is that to make solar panels, turbines and electrical vehicles the rare earth minerals required are acquired in Chile, China and Congo by stripping land of vegetation, soaked in chemicals and gruesome mining which is ecologically detrimental. For instance, battery of ecological virtue champion — Electrical vehicles expires quickly and pose another electric waste catastrophe. Similarly, turbines non-recyclable composites and toxic waste of solar panels adds to waste catastrophe. Thus under the illusion of sustainability renewable energy's material extraction to recycling does the very opposite. Instead of acquiring ecological awakening, human's egoism turned environmentalism to another industrial exploitation. Thus resulting in wounding Planet only in different way.
