QNO-3

Timothy Dexter's rivals advised him to ship coal to Newcastle because they wanted to humiliate him and did not want to see achieving him more success. The intended outcome was opposite of their intentions because it made them more speechless when they got to know that Dexter sold his entire cargo for a massive profit.

The unexpected event in England that transformed Dexter's apparently foolish coal venture into a profitable success was when his ship reached England, a miners' strike stopped local production, creating a sudden shortage. This was the point when Dexter sold his entire cargo for massive profit and eventually it became his one of the greatest victories.

(3)

The author implies that the relationship of luck and intelligence in Timothy Dexter's success is that Intelligence plays a huge role than luck as Intelligence is the pre requisite of luck.

Dexter's repeated success in turning mockery into profit challenges conventional ideas about business wisdom and education in a way that sometimes being underestimated is the best advantage a man can have. Because you have to prove yourself only through the success when people around you, mocks and fools you.

(5)

The human perception of "foolishness" and "genius" from the way Dexter's rivals reacted to his achievements can be inferred as bizarre decisions often looked as foolishness but when these turn into a milestone, people consider you a genius

Any professor of Urdu if claims to have full grip on the Galib's verse and can have the technical expertise to make it real after wholly debate, he might be showing his capabilities in regard to his knowledge standard, but if it demanded from him to utter a verse alike Galib's, he would have helpless. Because comprehension and creation are two different worlds. Comprehension serves as the outcome of intelligence, while creation is the consequence of intuition. The standard that Ghalib achieved was actually the amalgamation of extraordinary intelligence, feeling and God gifted, not merely a mixture of hardwork or study. This is the reason that even after ages, his poetry still have the same effect on our hearts as it was before.
