The ESSAY

The higher one rises in power, the heavier the air becomes. This quote says it all. This is the fact that when we have for the pursuit of something great, we bear hardships. We get suffocated. We fall before rising. We go through many silent struggles that nobody knows (Nelson Mandela who is known for the crown he carried, undoubtedly, that crown made him go through the imprisonment of 27 years before rising up to the status and power of "President". His life is a clear example of how to maintain peace after bringing it, how to suppress your own self in the pursuit of freedom for the sake of people of the nation. So to wear a crown, one will go through political, moral, social and psychological crisis. That is how History remembers the name of those who has ~~shed~~ been put through disaster to gender the ready to eat cake.

"Rome was not built in a day".

Before we begin, let us dive deeper into the meaning of "Heavy is the head, That wears Crown". The leaders we have read about were not the leaders from the day of inception, but they had to endure a lot to sail through the waves. Power does not come easy, it costs your entire life to get you a crown. (Keward). Many sleepless night, many great falls have to be suffered in order to rise again. We read as many pages as our capacity allows in order to know about those "Great People with crowns", but Have we ever given it a thought, that how long and how hard they would have been through to be discussed. and to be called a great leader.

In addition to their struggles we cannot forget that they had to pay the cost of bringing their dream to life. How can we forget the never ending struggles that has been put in to give us this beautiful state

Pakistan, where we are living in independently. This state was never given freely but our leaders had to go through hardships, humiliations dissappointment, management crises scarcity of food, security even the basic necessities to run the state efficiently.

The state Pakistan was stable for us as spectators but the ones who were giving their lives, know how they fought to get the crown.

Quaid-e-Azam the leader, the greatest man that has been given by Allah to the mother land has endured alot.

Quaid-e-Azam was a visionary leader with who could foresee the future that could have been a disaster for muslims of subcontinent, if Quaid would not have taken the a step towards a humiliation and disappointments.

Jinnah fought politically, he found constitutional means. He was the one who put forward the two nation theory for the liberation and freedom of muslim, to get this oppressed title away from the muslims of the subcontinent. If he would not transform 'All India Muslim League Party', Pakistan would never rose up on the political arena.

Further more, Liaqat Ali Khan who worked alongside Jinnah. After inception, managing the state was a real task now. Jinnah can not be named here only, but

Liagat Ali Khan would be remembered too. He was the first finance minister of Pakistan. As after inception, they Liagat Ali Khan had to manage the finance and the utilization, so he took over as a finance minister and served in administration too to start from scratch. Later became the first

Prime minister of Pakistan and

He was the one who put forward objective resolution and drafted its main clauses and worked to strengthen

Pakistan's position internationally as well.

In Political Arena we can not forget Abraham Lincoln who was the 16th President of United States. He had been through the hardest times. When civil war broke, he managed the state from collapsing. How?

The southern and the Northern state had a flashpoint on slavery. Southern wanted to keep the slave system, while Northern state under Lincoln's leadership wanted to end the slavery, so to keep the balance Lincoln issued executive order to free all the slaves within U.S, a great and brave step for the abolition.

of slavery.

Moreover, to get the crown, one has to go through Moral assessments.

It is not the ultimate step that once you achieve your goal you can live as per your interests. You are accountable to state and the law. When Pakistan came into being, we were lucky to have leaders like Quaid-e-Azam, Allama Iqbal, Liaqat Ali Khan, who were the pillars to the state and had white collars till their last breath.

No corruption, No self interest, They lived and died for the country.

Unfortunately, Pakistan has not been strong stable enough on the time of inception. After the great loss of the leaders, Pak came in the hands of ~~Bure~~ Bureaucrats like "Ghulam Muhammad" who was the Governor General and is known for the derailment of the country. He dissolved Constituent Assembly for his future, undermining the sacrifices that our leaders had given to put the crown on. This is not just how you endure pain and get the crown but essence is to keep it on and don't let the sacrifices of the nation has go waste.

In addition, Pain does not end here, we have seen how ~~our~~^{the} great and consistent leaders, who are not greedy work tirelessly to make the nation grow prosperously. Here we have another man, The U.S President "Donald Trump" who during pandemic [covid] smartly strategized. Country ran short of ventilators. What did he do? He commanded (General Motors) to use their skills in making ventilators, As Trump threatened and used hard power that if they don't, then (General Motors) will be nationalized and they will not be able to own it. Right on the third day of communal ventilators came out in the market. That is how leadership works. That is why Trump is smart, Intellectual and worthy of the crown, he is wearing today.

Lastly it is true that, heads become heavy, & heads drain. If we see again, the leaders we have mentioned had been through many stressful though. They endured social pressure, they lived in isolation, they had to go through all these trials alone which ultimately demanded their lives in order to give us a state we are in today.

Quaid-e-Azam died due to (Tuberculosis).. Lignat

Ali Khan was publically assassinated. How painfully the carried a crown, we see the crown but forgets the struggle. We as youth should be their followers.

A state flourishes if the youth is skilled. Let's use our skills in the betterment of this "Mother land" to keep the crown on.
