

PART-II

Topic:

Renewable energy: another threat for climate change

The zero carbon emission is used as a slogan but there are other facts. The renewable energy mainly depends on the production of solar panels, wind turbines and electric vehicles, but these are made with rare earth minerals. The lesson of environmental concerns is that it can vanish by opening another threat for people. The electric vehicles remarkable for mainly mitigating carbon dioxide, but manufacturing process of batteries and electric waste after usage emit more carbon than normal combustion of engines. Also, turbines and solar panels change into toxic waste after using years. Climate crisis not only hampered by renewable energy, but it also needs policy reforms.
