QNO.5

The prisoner looked through the narrow window and said, "They call this justice, yet I have never been heard." The guard replied softly, "Orders are orders, sir. Freedom is not decided here."

A journalist outside shouted, "The minister claimed no one is above the law, but who decides what law means when truth is, behind bar?" The cell fell silent;

the prisoner smiled faintly and whispered, "They can cage a man,
but not his conviction."

QNO. 7

Translation

IS a professor of Urdu claims that he comprehends Ghalib's poetry well and he can charm an audience by thoroughly discussing his artistic merits; undoubtedly, he is exhibiting his scholarly competence. However, if he is demanded to compose even a single verse like Ghalib, he would be helpless. This is because ~~comprehension and composition are two separate domains. Comprehension is the product of intellect~~

~~while creation is the result of attempt in idiomatic and proverbial manner~~ please imitation and inspiration. The position that Ghalib attained was not through reading or hard work but also a manifestation of extraordinary intellect, sensibility and Divine grace. That's why, his poetry portray its impacts on hearts, even centuries later, in the same way they did in his own period.

QNo.3

Comprehension

- 1) Timothy Dexter's rivals advised him to ship coal to Newcastle. because the city was already famous for its abundant coal supply. They were envious of his financial success, so in order to ruin him financially they advised him to sell coal in a saturated market.
- 2) Dexter embarked on a seemingly foolish venture of selling coal to Newcastle - a coal saturated market. However, a temporary shortage was created due to miners' strike. Consequently, he sold his entire cargo at a high price. In this way, his apparently foolish venture turned into success.
- 3) By narrating Dexter's tale of success, the author implies that his success was not only a product of luck but also of his unconventional intelligence. His story suggests that luck often turns bad ventures into unexpected success.

4) His story of repeatedly turning mockery and envy into profit exhibits the idea that sometimes being underestimated is the best advantage a man can have. Formal education and logical planning is not the only way to ensure success. Sometimes, confidence, risk taking and resilience help a man to achieve his goals.

5) From the perception of Dexter's rivals it can be interpreted that people often regard unconventional ideas as foolish. However, when a venture turns profitable it is deemed as genius. Thus, the human perception of foolishness and genius deemed from results not efforts.

QNO.2

THE HIDDEN COST OF GREEN ENERGY

well done quite relevant title

In the general perception, renewable energy is celebrated as human salvation. However, behind its virtuous image lies disturbing truth. Technologies like solar panels, wind turbines and electric vehicles rely on destructive extraction of rare earth minerals from poorer regions. The extraction practices left poisonous chemicals to make those sites uninhabitable, gradually.

Read the passage carefully to understand the central idea. Identify key points - main arguments, important facts, essential details. Remove examples, stories, quotations, repetitions, and anything unnecessary. Use your own words (do not copy long sentences from the passage). Keep it concise - usually one-third of the original length. Maintain the tone (serious, humorous, scientific).
