Q#2.

The Deception of Green Energy

Title: Renewable Energy: Promises vs Reality

07/20

Overall understanding the idea is ok
Title needs improvement.
Grammar is ok.

Renewable energy is widely portrayed as the remedy to fossil fuel dependence, ensuring sustainable future. Government and corporations promote the green revolution under the cover of salvation hiding the paradox of its planet exhaustion. The so-called clean technology also demands infrastructure and mineral needs, creating a poisoned environment. The mismatch between the promising outcome and the recycling challenges unveil the reality of social cost to environment under the cover of progress.

Ans 1.

Timothy Dexter's rivals advised him to ship coal to Newcastle, because they were tired of his success. They made this advice to humiliate Dexter.

They intended him to lose everything by going Newcastle where coal production is enough to meet the people's demands. They wanted Dexter to go there and suffer business loss.

Ans 2.

When Dexter went Newcastle, the miners were on strike and the local coal production was hindered, resulting into sudden shortage of coal in the region. This strike turned Dexter's foolish venture into profitable success.

Ans 3.

The author implies that Timothy Deuter's success was a blend of luck and underestimated intelligence. While his ventures appeared foolish, the outcomes often turned in his favor.

Ans 4.

Deuter's repeated success challenges the belief that profitable business demands rational planning always. His story demonstrates that confidence can turn circumstances into the unconventional success. Business demands daring steps to take.

Ans 5.

The fine line between foolishness and genius depends largely on results rather than intentions or methods.

Q#7.
If a professor claims that he has attained understanding of Chalib's poetry and has command over his style, then undoubtedly he is showing his intellectual skills. But if he is demanded to write a single verse like Cchalib, he would be helpless. Because intellect and inspiration are two different realms things. Intellect give rise to reasoning while inspiration is the result of spiritual and divine revelation. The secrets of Cchalib's greatness lay not in intellect alone, but in that non-worldly depth of feeling and divine inspiration because of which even after centuries, his verses touch hearts and have a long lasting impact.
