detailed discussion of its artistic levels, he is definitely entitled to his academic reputation. However, if he is then asked to compose a single verse as well as Ghalib's, he will be found helpless. Because comprehension and creation are two different realms. Comprehension is a product of the sense, and whereas creation is the result of imagination and inspiration. The status Ghalib achieved was not only merely due to study or efforts, but was extraordinary genius, emotion, and God given manifestation. That's why, his poetry have the same impact on the hearts as they did in his own time.

the green revolution conceals significant ecological and social costs. Solar, panels wind turbines, and electric vehicles require rare material mined through environment destructive practices, often in impoverished regions. Electric vehicles emit more carbon than traditional engines and create recycling challenges, while wind and solar infrastructure generates toxic waste and relies on fossil fuels for production and maintenance. The obsession with green technologies fosters moral complacency and marketing driven environmental, masking the ongoing exploitation of the planet. True sustainability requires restraint, efficiency and humility, rather than substituting one environmental crisis for another.
