QUESTION #2 Precise

The Deception of Green Energy

The Illusion of Green Revolution

05/20

Overall understanding the idea is ok
Title needs improvement.
Grammar is ok

The portrayal of renewable energy as the ethical saviour of humanity and a remedy to the overuse of fossil fuels in the past through terms such as carbon neutrality and net zero, is a false one that conceals an unsettling reality that the Green Revolution itself is disturbing the planet due to mining. These proclamations neglect the hidden cost of 'clean' technologies such as solar panels, wind turbines, and electric vehicles that are detrimental to the environment, owing to their production, transport, installation, carbon footprint, and brevery and have adverse impacts such as deforestation, land fortification, and uninhabitability. The tragedy is that the idea of 'green labels' has merely become a rhetoric rather than a source of ^{Real} true realization. Sustainability requires boundaries, efficiency, and humility instead of exploitation.

Humanity's green enthusiasm risks merely wounding the Earth anew instead of healing it

QUESTION # 3 READING COMPREHENSION

• Question #1:-

The rivals of Timothy Dexter encouraged him to ship coal to Newcastle out of their envy at his success. They had hoped that this shipment would be a misstep since Newcastle was known for its rich supply of coal. Ultimately, it turned out to be a huge success because Newcastle was facing a decline in coal supply, and hence, an increased demand which was met by Dexter's shipment.

• Question #2:-

The miners in Newcastle had went on a strike that had halted the local coal production, leading to a coal shortage in the area. This shortfall was offset by the transportation of ^{coal} ~~Dexter~~ by Dexter, thus generating an economic profit for him.

• Question #3:-

The author implies that Timothy's luck was a more dominant factor in his success as compared to his intelligence since he would make seemingly foolish business decisions and would still end up successful, even in clearly unfavourable circumstances.

• Question #4:-

The traditional notions about business wisdom and education lay an emphasis upon careful, precise, and well-informed planning and execution. However, Dexter's repeated success represents a stark contrast to these ideas, since his victories were often times attributed to his self-confidence, risk-taking nature, and luck.

• Question #5:-

The human perception of 'foolishness' and 'genius' is subjective and is largely driven by the outcome of a certain action or strategy. This is evident from the reactions of Dexter's contemporaries upon his decisions, criticising them as foolish initially but acknowledging them as genius and intelligent later on, after they had turned out to be successful.

QUESTION #7: TRANSLATION

5/10

If any professor of Urdu claims to understand Ghalib's poetry and that he can discuss its merits at length, then, undoubtedly, he is expressing his academic ability, but if he is asked to write a single couplet like that of Ghalib, he would be unable to do so. This is because perception and creation are two extremely different things. Perception is a product of intellect, while creation is a result of passion and divine inspiration. The stature that was enjoyed by Ghalib was not merely due to research and hardwork, rather it was the manifestation of extraordinary intelligence, sensitivity, and God-gifted capability. That is why, even centuries later, his poetry holds the same importance that it held in those times.
