05/20

In Pakistan, the civil service, once viewed solely as a noble avenue of public service, has transformed into a blend of necessity, prestige, and self-promotion. For many it offers job security, respect, and influence in a country lacking stable employment. For others, the CSS exam has become an obsession, with success seen as a measure of self-worth, often at the cost of personal well-being. Recently, a new trend has emerged where bureaucrats cultivate social media personas, projecting glamorous lifestyles alongside official roles. The dual identity of public servant and influencer raises questions: does it inspire youth or distract from the true essence of governance?

Ultimately, the image of civil servants, both on and off screen, has become as influential as their actual authority.

Let us explore the meaning of the quote: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you", said the teacher.

The student replied, "Does it mean that if I want kindness, I must first show kindness?"

The teacher nodded and said, "Exactly. It is about treating people the way you wish to be treated."

The student smiled and added, "So if I respect others, I am more likely to be respected in return?"

"Yes," the teacher concluded. "That is the golden rule of life."
