

1. Women Empowerment

- a) Socially
- b) Politically
- c) Economically
- d) Examples.

Women empowerment means the power, right and confidence given to women in all aspects of life. In social, Political, and economical aspects. Firstly, there should be no gender based discrimination. Women should be treated equally, they must be given their all rights that they can make decisions on their choice. Women should be given an authority to make decision on their marriage, career and lifestyle. Secondly, Women should be treated equal in leadership roles. Right to vote also be entertained by women on their choice. Women have right to vote, they can role or perform their roles on their own choice, they are not bound to anyone. Thirdly, there is discrimination in pay and job opportunities. Women should be treated equally jobs because men are always being preferred in jobs and also get more pay as compared to women. Women are also deprived from their inheritance rights in property, and the family pressure and male dominant society makes them silent to claim their right which are legally and islamically given to her by Pakistan's legal framework and Quran. Lastly, there are some examples of women empowerment, which are Malala Yousafza, who advocated for girl's education world wide. Another example is Ruth Bader Ginsburg, who fought for gender equality in law. Therefore, UN Women works globally to empower women and promote equality.
