Title

Winston Churchill: One of the great orators.

Precis

The future of oratory is unpredictable. Oratory has lost its significance. It is looked at with contempt. Orators of ancient times deemed it to be the excellent job. They were taking substantial toil to shape its future.

Today, its significance has diminished. It is not hoped that men and women should take toil in the perfection of oratory. Many developments have given it a back seat. Similarly, Sir Winston Churchill was one of the great orators of ancient times. Many ^{renowned} orators have earned their names in English oratory. He also deserves such place. His speeches will be indelible examples in the history of oratory.

Answers

1. Sportmanship is conceptualized in the passage as it possesses certain characteristics that make individuals act in a way contrary to expectations. Moreover, it encompasses many virtues, such as fairness, self control, courage, and persistence.

2. The four elements of sportmanship mentioned in the passage are good form, the will to win, equity and fairness. Furthermore, it is emphasized that a balance must be found among them as increasing tilt toward one of them causes clashes and does not fulfill the criteria of sportmanship.

3. According to the passage the desire to win sometimes conflicts with the elements of equity and fairness in sportmanship. The reason is that it induces the athlete to be self-centered. This approach negates the concept of sportmanship. As a result, conflict arises.

Ans 4. Some losers makes empty excuses for his loss, such as unfortunate situations or other irrelevant issues. Similarly, bad winners boasts his win. This dawns the morale of his opponents. Behavior of bad losers impacts the perception of good sportmanship by not making himself responsible for the loss. In the same way, behavior of bad winners makes opponents lose self-esteem that negates the idea of good sportmanship. In this way, good sportmanship is impacted in a negative way.

If you look about you and consider the lives of others as well as your own; if you think how few are born with bones and how few friends many die without name or children; how little beauty we see and how few friends we hear of; how many diseases and how much poverty there is in the world,

you will fall down upon knees, and instead of repining at one affliction, will admire so many blessings which you have received from the hand of God.

Answer 7

It is the sorry state of affairs in our society that everyone gives assurance of change; but when it comes to action then all hesitate. In gatherings, there are chants for revolution. Reforms are profusely touched upon in writings. However, it does not take a moment to compromise on small principle in the practical life. Resultantly, the society has become like dual-faced mirrors; on the one side, there ~~are~~ is palace of dreams, and on the other side, there is deficit of reality. We all want bitterness of others but fear self accountability. Ostensibly, no one is of any avail. Nations are no better from hollow charis better character; And character refines when individual makes himself accountable in his personal circle; otherwise, collective development will go to vain.
