

Name Khafir Ali 17/02/88081881
Batch-406-B

Sentence correction

1- The committee who were appointed to investigate the matter they should request submitted their report last week.

Ans: The committee who was appointed to investigate the matter ~~they~~ it submitted its report last week.

Ans 2: He has been living in this city for ten years and knows every corner of it.

Ans 3: Scarcely had I reached the station when the train departed from the platform.

Ans 4: Each of the students is required to submit his/her assignments before the deadline.

Ans 6: The number of unemployed graduates is increasing every year in the country.

Prepositions:

- ii- We must abide by the rules of institution.
- iii- He is deficient of common sense despite his education.
- vi- The minister expressed his disapproval with the manner in which the inquiry was conducted.
- v- The new policy is prejudicial against the interests of small farmers and landless labourers.
- iv- The principal presided to the function yesterday.

Answer: 03: Comprehension:

Ans ii: The Author identify the fundamental error in the popular understanding ~~regarding~~ of the relationship of tradition and progress, as locked in eternal opposition, with tradition holding back the innovation and progress representing the dynamic energy. This simplistic dichotomy has led into a dangerous intellectual trap. This error has poisoned discourse and impoverished our civilization. that is why it is considered dangerous.

Ans 2: The author uses historical examples to challenge the notion that progress requires abandoning the past. The author says that every great renaissance in human history has involved not a rejection of the past but a creative reappropriation of it. The scholars of the European Renaissance looked backward to classical antiquity even as they moved forward into modernity. Also the great religious reformers grounded their revolutionary visions in ancient texts. Even scientific revolutions never neglected insights from earlier thinkers. Hence by this way the writer uses historical examples to challenge the notion that progress requires abandoning the past.

Ans 3:- The writer describes the tradition as "a living conversation across generations" rather than "a static repository of dead customs". By this the writer explains the importance of the tradition that it is not a static repository of dead customs but a living conversation across generations, in which the present interrogates the past and the past challenges the present.

Ans 4:- The modern world is full of people frantically seeking meaning, purpose and identity in exotic spiritualities, therapeutic techniques and political movements, never suspecting that what they seek might be found in traditions they have been taught to despise. This is not an argue for blind adherence to tradition or against genuine innovation in contemporary society.

~~Ans 5:- Yes, such distinction is possible, as we are inevitably~~

~~Ans 5:- Yes, such distinction is possible. The valuable traditions and harmful ones should be distinguished with real intelligence and judgment because~~

Ans 51- Yes, it is possible to distinguish between valuable traditions and harmful ones but real intelligence and judgment will be required for it. Some traditions are valuable but some are just a false notion and misconception which only holds back the society from innovations. Hence it should be vanished.

Answer : 02

Precis:

The modernization has evolved a different problem in our intellectual life. The more knowledge advances, the less able we become to deal with basic problems. The expert of each field has merely a narrow point of view regarding the problem. This division of education into fields has left made problems in categorization of contradictions into specific field. There are many issues which requires multiple fields for its solution. Despite ignorance, the medieval thinker had a combined form of knowledge in a single picture, which gives an easy approach to the problems.

Furthermore the consultation of experts for the basic human activities has made us childish and weakened our belief in common sense. This led the conversion of active citizens into passive consumers. Withdrawing back to ancient knowledge would be foolish. rather putting the same knowledge in one combined form would be the solution. The schools and universities are needed to develop a versatile approach of students for problems. The integrated approach of modern knowledge and ordinary intelligence would make us experts of civilization.

Title:

The Modern Expertise : A strange contradiction

Ans: 7: Translation

Literature is the live interpretation of the moral and spiritual aspects of a society. The decline of literature is directly proportional to the decline of society. Unfortunately the modern literature is only used as a mean of income. The real literature is the one which ~~trigh~~ highlights the real problems of society at any cost. But the modern literature only flatters the powerful individuals for the sake of money.

This is the dishonesty with the nation and literature.