iv Conclusion

Quran says "after hardship, Allah SWT will bring about ease". This verse signifies that difficulties are unavoidable and are intertwined with life. One cannot escape them; however, fighting with them through resilience and proper contemplation may ease such burdens. Sometimes, nothing is the hardest thing to do in life. One merely needs firm belief in one's abilities which encourages a person to accomplish tasks despite being the hardest.

Bulb discovery, restaurants networking, spreading new religion or cracking CSS exams are nothing in front of determination, consistency, resilience and sincerity with oneself. Some may fail

However, because of their own mistakes and unwilling to fix them and move forward. Therefore, bringing positive energy in oneself enables one to do even herculean task.

Creating something new is not an easy task. Otherwise, every one would have done. Inventions and discoveries are piece of cakes for those who are determined to accomplish their goals without losing hope. Bulb discovery is one of the major examples for us where Thomas Edison discover it after multiple failure. However he did not loss hope and learnt from his mistakes and last he succeeded

Business is not a cup of tea of everyone. It needs high morale, immense strength and endless patience to become a successful businessman. In Pakistan, a poor individual from backward area of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa ^{has} established a chain of restaurants nationally as well as internationally with the name of TKR restaurants. This would have not been possible if he had not set realistic goal for himself despite being with lack of resources. He even does not stop here and continue his struggle to revive positive image of Pakistan to the world.

Religion is a very sensitive institution and changing it require high courage. Convincing some one to accept one's religion is one of the hardest tasks. In this regard, our prophet Muhammad (SAW) gave invitation to the elite class as well as the commoners of Makkah to accept Islam. He faced severe opposition and resistance from the opponents by inflicting him with personal attacks. However, he continued his struggle and now Islam is the second largest religion in the world.

Cracking competitive and the toughest exams is indeed a hard job. However, it is an ABC for those who believe in oneself, working through dedication and consistency. Not everyone can show such courage and perseverance of facing failures with quiet patience. For instance, ^{some} CSS aspirants are loyal and focused on changing their life from an ordinary student to become a civil servant and serve the nation with enthusiasm.

There are obvious challenges for not doing hardest things. Procrastination is one of them. It is a quality of someone who gets one's works and responsibility delayed day by day without working on them in its proper and due time. This makes a person idle and unsuccessful in life where one cannot achieve major success in life.

Inimicity with oneself is another major challenge. Some people are brutal enough that they even deceive oneself by passing time unknowingly. They are the one who always put their gun on others' shoulder. However, it is a natural law that one cannot succeed unless they work on themselves. In Quran Allah SWT says "Allah do not change a nation, unless they themselves want change." This shows self-reliance and self-confidence and taking responsibility of oneself in order to thrive in life.

Setting impossible or oblivious goals may also discourage and demotivate some people in their lives. When a goal is not clear and realistic then one cannot feel the energy to work on it. Such goals don't bring the vibes and energy in an individual because they do not see progress. On the other hand, if one set realistic goal and divide it into small parts and accomplishing such small chunks provide positive energy and put one on one's right track to chase goals.

There are some suggested measures to crack difficult tasks with comfort. Consistency and true determination is one of the top keys for thriving in life. For instance, in the ^{fable} story of Hare and Tortoise, where hare loose the race despite being fast while tortoise win because of continuous struggle and determination.

Sincerity, likewise strengthens an individual to perform very well. Those who are not loyal with one-self cannot be proved loyal to others. Therefore, it is quite pertinent to be sincere with oneself and compete with oneself for small and consecutive progress in personality. For example, Virat Kohli - an Indian cricketer became a world class batsman after strong belief in himself and hardworking. Though, he was not good at start. This show the power of improving oneself through sincerity.

Setting small and realistic goals for achieving success is ~~not~~ necessary. Chasing such goals are easy and rewarding which gives a source of motivation to do more. Even the hardest tasks can be cracked by planning them with right approach by dividing them into small manageable goals.

In a nutshell, the hardest goals are not difficult for some people. Because, they apply right techniques with proper planing, sincerity, determination, resilience and passion. In addition, they divide the herculean tasks into small, manageable tasks for easiness and motivation. Furthermore, believe in oneself is one ^{of the} major step to be followed for doing any task. Removing procrastination, oblivious goals and inconsistency can be fruitful in one life. Therefore, nothing is difficult against strong determination and perseverance.
