Title: Limitations of Over Specialized Experts

The modern knowledge made the human specialized in one field but made unable ^{to} address basic human problems. Experts see the ^{world} ~~human~~ through narrow disciplinary lenses economist view as a cost minimizing agents, biologist as a gene carriers, psychologists as unconscious impulse bundles so each discipline captures only a fragment of truth

The complex issues split into complex tiny parts that different specialist handle. This complexity creating a distorted, broken mirror of reality instead of unified view. Excessive reliance on experts weakens ordinary judgment and turns citizens into passive consumers of opinion. To fix this, society need to bring all knowledge back together, teach people to think across many subjects, and value common sense that come from cultural and thinking.

Q (Question No. 03) ~~~~~

~ Answer No. 1 ~

The author says people mistakenly think tradition and progress are opposite forces tradition is seen as dead, restrictive past and and progress as a free-flowing future. This false split is dangerous because it pushes us into an intellectual trap where we either blindly reject the past or reject change, preventing a balanced approach to solving problems.

~ Answer No .2 ~

The author cites the European Renaissance, where scholars revived ancient classical texts to inspire new ideas, and scientific revolution which reused forgotten insights from earlier thinkers. These examples show that genuine progress is not about cutting off roots but re-appropriating and building on past knowledge.

~ Answer NO. 3 ~

The writer means Tradition is an active ~~life~~ between present and past, where ideas are questioned, reinterpreted, used to guide the future; not a fixed store of obsolete practice a dynamic process that lets each learn from and improve upon

~ Answer NO. 4 ~

The paradox is that modern people cut themselves off from history, chase meaning in fleeting facts, or ideologies, yet they ignore traditions that could provide. This shows contemporary society has and is vulnerable to superficial solutions its own history

~Q:06~

The minister, addressing the gathering, said:

"my fellow citizens, we stand today at a critical juncture in our nation's history. We must ask ourselves: are we prepared to face the challenges ahead, or ^{shall} we succumb to despondency and inaction?" Dr. Ahmed, the renowned economist, had warned us last year that, unless immediate reforms are undertaken, the economy will collapse.

However, precisely the predicament he had predicted; therefore, I urge you all to support the government's new economic policy which, though potent in the short term, will yield beneficial results in the long run. Let us not repeat the mistakes of the past; let's move forward with determination and courage.
